Oppgave 123

It happened on a Tuesday. I remember the precise time: it arrived at four o'clock in the afternoon. I was born in the 1940s, so this was all new to me. We were getting our first television. I usually went to the cinema on Saturdays, now I did not have to leave the house! Our neighbours came by in the evening. They all wanted to see our new wonder. Some would continue to come every day at six o'clock to watch the news. They would leave at midnight. After some time, I started missing my cinema. I wanted to see romantic films at the weekend, not documentaries, news and debates. But I loved watching famous musicians.

I also went to their concerts, mostly in the summer. There were many concerts in July. When the walkman appeared on the market in the 80s, I would be one of the first to buy one. At that moment, holding my walking man for the first time, I felt free. Little did I know how many different technical devices would appear in the next decades. Telling teenagers about our old TV now feels like we were living in the Stone Age.

It flew across the street, over the children's heads and fell down on the grass. The young man rushed towards the ball. He looked ashamed. He stepped into his car and drove off.
